(1) to fix or amend any tariff for the supply, transmission or delivery by a distributor or for the storage of natural gas;

(2) to supervise the operations of distributors to ensure that consumers are adequately supplied and are charged a fair and reasonable rate for the supply, transmission, delivery or storage of natural gas, or the provision of services;

(3) to decide any dispute between a consumer and a distributor over the application of a tariff or any other condition for the supply, transmission or delivery of natural gas or the provision of services;

Provisional decision It may also render any provisional decision it considers necessary to protect the rights of the parties.

Review 23. The Régie may revise or revoke any decision it has rendered

(1) where a new fact is discovered which could have justified a different decision had it been known in due time;

(2) where, for reasons deemed sufficient, a party interested in the dispute could not be heard;

(3) where a substantive or procedural defect is likely to invalidate the decision.

Clerical errors 24. Any decision containing clerical errors, mistakes in calculation or any other error of form may be rectified by the Régie.

DIVISION IV

TARIFFS

§ 1.—Fixing

Tariffs 31. Tariffs shall be fixed or amended by the Régie upon the application of an interested person.

Documents Every application for the fixing or amendment of a tariff shall be accompanied with the documents and fees prescribed by regulation.

Considerations 32. When fixing or amending a tariff, the Régie shall

(1) determine the rate base for a distributor after taking into account, in particular, the fair value of the assets it considers prudently acquired and used and useful for the operation of a distribution system, the undepreciated research and development and marketing expenditures, the merchandising programs, the preliminary expenses and the working capital required for the operation of a distribution system;

(2) determine such total amount of expenditures as it considers necessary to cover the cost of providing the service concerned and such rate of return on the rate base of the distributor as it considers reasonable;

(3) take into account the cost of service by classes of consumers and the competition from other forms of energy;

(4) ascertain that the tariff and other conditions applicable to the supply, transmission, delivery and storage of natural gas are fair and reasonable.

Other methods

The Régie may also use any other method it considers appropriate in the interest of the parties.

Fair value

33. The fair value of the assets of a distributor shall be calculated on the basis of the original cost, less depreciation.

Actual cost

34. The rates and other conditions applicable under a tariff to the supply of natural gas to a consumer or class of consumers must reflect the actual cost of acquisition or any other condition of supply granted to a distributor by producers of natural gas or their representatives in consideration of the consumption by such consumer or class of consumers.

Restrictions

35. In no case may the tariff prescribe, for the supply, transmission or delivery of natural gas, higher rates or more stringent conditions than are necessary to ensure, in particular, that the capital expenditures and operating costs are met, that the stability of the undertaking and the normal development of the distribution system are maintained or that the distributor obtains a reasonable return on his rate base.

Storage of natural gas

The same applies to the storage of natural gas by any person who operates a reservoir for that purpose.

Rate of return

36. Where the Régie finds, at the expiry of a fiscal year, that the rate of return resulting from the application of a tariff is higher than the rate of return previously determined, it may, of its own initiative or at the request of an interested person, invite the distributor concerned to give the reasons owing to which the surplus earnings ought not be reimbursed to the consumers.

Reimbursement of surplus earnings

After giving all interested persons an opportunity to be heard, the Régie, if it considers it in the public interest, may order the reimbursement of the surplus earnings to the consumers on the terms and conditions it determines.

§ 2.—Application

Restrictions

37. No person may impose, for the supply, transmission, delivery or storage of natural gas, rates or conditions other than those prescribed in a tariff fixed by the Régie.

Service to customers Under penalty of damages, no distributor may discontinue or suspend service to a consumer because of his refusal to pay a price other than the price resulting from the application of a tariff fixed by the Régie.

Prohibited stipulation 38. Any stipulation of an agreement which is at variance with a tariff fixed by the Régie is null.

Dispute 39. A consumer or a distributor may request the Régie to decide any dispute over the application of a tariff or any other condition for the provision of a service.

DIVISION V

inquiry commissions (R.S.Q., chapter C-37), except the power to order imprisonment.

- Exemption 54. The Régie may, at the request of a consumer or a distributor, exempt a distributor from complying with an application or request made under section 52 or 53 where it is of opinion, in particular, that

(1) it would be detrimental to the profitability or efficient operation of the undertaking of the distributor;

(2) the public interest so requires;

(3) the costs of the requested service would not be borne by the consumer;

(4) the application or request is likely to endanger the security of supply of another consumer.

Exemption

Where natural gas is used mainly for space heating or domestic purposes, the Régie may also exempt a distributor from complying with a request made under the second paragraph of section 52 if it is of opinion that the security of supply offered under the conditions agreed upon between the consumer and a third person, taking into account the consumer's specific requirements and the availability of gas, is not comparable to that offered by a distributor.

Annual duties

55. Distributors shall pay to the Régie annual duties at the rate and in accordance with the terms and conditions prescribed by regulation.
