Legal persons Every legal person authorized to carry on one of the activities mentioned in the first paragraph is a trust company.

Applicability 2. This Act also applies to every company which borrows money from the public in the form of deposits for the purposes of loans and investments and which is required to register with the Régie de l'assurance-dépôts du Québec in order to carry on that activity.

Legal persons Every legal person authorized to carry on the activity described in the first paragraph is a savings company.

Exceptions 3. Legal persons governed by the Act respecting insurance (R.S.Q., chapter A-32) are not subject to those provisions of this Act which are applicable to trust companies.

(1) directly or indirectly give to a person and his associates ten per cent or more of the voting rights attached to the shares if they do not already own over fifty per cent of them and if the voting rights attached to the shares they own do not allow them to elect a majority of directors;

(2) directly or indirectly increase the voting rights attached to the shares already owned by a person and his associates to at least ten per cent or at least a multiple of ten per cent if they do not already own over fifty per cent of them and if the voting rights attached to the shares they own do not allow them to elect a majority of directors;

(3) directly or indirectly give to a person and his associates control of the company or of the legal person that controls it directly or indirectly.

Application

70. The application for authorization made to the Minister must indicate the names and addresses of the persons concerned, the number and the particulars of the shares they hold of the capital stock of the company or of that of the legal person that controls it directly or indirectly, and, in respect of each person, the number and the particulars of the shares that it is proposed to allot or transfer.

(1) where the non-resident, alone or with an associate, already has, directly or indirectly, ten per cent or more of the voting rights in the company or in the legal person that controls it, or where the allotment or transfer in effect gives him, directly or indirectly, more than ten per cent of the voting rights;

(2) where all the non-resident shareholders and their associates already hold, directly or indirectly, twenty-five per cent or more of the voting rights attached to the shares in the company or in the legal person that controls it or where the allotment or transfer in effect gives them, directly or indirectly, more than twenty-five per cent of the voting rights;

"non-resident"

73. A non-resident, for the purposes of section 72, is a natural person who resides in Canada for fewer than 183 consecutive days a year, a legal person incorporated elsewhere than in Canada or a legal person directly or indirectly controlled by such a natural person or such a legal person.

Trust

The same applies to a trust created by a non-resident or in which non-residents together hold fifty per cent of the interests.

Exception regarding transfer or allotment

74. No prohibition applies under section 72

(1) where the allotment or transfer does not in effect increase the percentage of voting rights already held, directly or indirectly, by a non-resident or by all the non-residents and their associates;

(2) to the allotment or transfer of voting shares where non-residents and their associates already hold over fifty per cent of the voting rights;

(3) to the allotment of shares carrying over fifty per cent of the voting rights to non-residents and their associates at the incorporation of a company.

Deemed voting rights

75. For the purposes of section 72, the Inspector General, after giving the persons concerned an opportunity to be heard, may by order deem a person to have voting rights attached to shares in a Canadian company or legal person that controls a company directly or indirectly, if in his opinion that person, alone or with his associate, is in a position to influence the way in which any shares in the company are voted.

Deemed percentage of voting rights

76. For the purposes of sections 69 and 72, where voting rights attached to shares in a company or shares in a legal person that controls the company, directly or indirectly, are held by another legal person, the shareholders of the latter are deemed to hold a percentage of the voting rights attached to the shares in the company or in the legal person that controls it, directly or indirectly, equal to the product of the percentage of voting rights they hold in the latter legal person and the percentage of voting rights held by the latter in the company or in the legal person that controls it directly or indirectly.

77. A company or the legal person that controls it directly or indirectly may request any information required for the application of sections 69 and 72.

Every person who is requested to furnish information shall comply with the request. If the person fails to comply, the allotment cannot be made nor the transfer registered in his favour.

Information obtained pursuant to the first paragraph must be communicated to the Inspector General at his request.

78. A voting share that is held jointly is, for the purposes of this chapter, deemed held by a non-resident if at least one of the holders is a non-resident.

79. No person may exercise a voting right attached to a share of a company where the allotment or the registration of the transfer of the share was effected contrary to sections 69 and 72.

80. A legal person that controls a company directly or indirectly can no longer exercise voting rights attached to shares of the company where it has allotted its own shares or registered their transfer contrary to sections 69 and 72.

81. Where the allotment or the registration of the transfer of shares was effected contrary to section 69, the voting right may again be exercised if the Minister grants his authorization. The Minister's authorization shall take effect on any date, even a date prior to the authorization, determined by the Minister.

Computation

In computing that amount, no account shall be taken of securities contemplated in subparagraphs 2, 3, 5 and 6 of the first paragraph of section 203 nor of hypothecary claims the repayment of which is approved or insured within the meaning of the National Housing Act (R.S.C., 1970, chapter N-10) or the excess amount of which is guaranteed or insured by the government of Québec, of another Canadian province, of Canada or of a territory of Canada, or by any agency thereof, or under a hypothec insurance policy issued by an insurance company authorized to carry on business in Canada.
